CHAIR'S REPORT

Adar 5777
March/April 2017

Although I was unable to attend the City of Hull Holocaust Memorial Day 2017 at the Hull Guildhall on Thursday 26 January 2017, I understand that there was a reasonable attendance from our community and the programme of presentations, poems and music was not only entertaining, but thought-provoking. Regarding the Holocaust, I think that it is very important that we continue to pass on the stories of the horrors and sacrifice to future generations of Jews and non-Jews and thus ensure that "We shall never forget".

With that thought in mind, we will be arranging a social afternoon or evening in July 2017 to show the newly released film 'Denial', which followed the court case surrounding the denial of the Holocaust. We intend to screen it the Shul hall and the invitation to attend would be opened up to the whole Jewish community.

The attendance for the Tu B'Shevat Seder was very good and the informal manner of the Service, with assistance from Aimi Sugarman, and the opportunity to come together to celebrate, to talk and to eat, made the evening truly special. I certainly managed to eat my way through my '5-a-day'.

Looking ahead, there's quite a bit going on. Our Purim Service and Kiddush will be held on Saturday evening 11 March 2017. Fancy dress is optional, but feel free to get into the spirit of Purim even if it's a token effort. Following the Kiddush, we have arranged a social evening including a quiz called "Family Broygus" which is loosely based on the popular quiz show "Family Fortunes". Refreshments will be available, but you will need to bring a bottle.

Details of the rest of the events taking place over the next few months, can be found of pages 3 and 4. Don't forget that our Communal Seder will be held on the first night of Pesach, Monday 10 April 2017 and that the earlier you buy your tickets the cheaper they are.

Finally, please don't forget to come to our Friday Night and Shabbat Morning Services.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

PURIM SERVICE, KIDDUSH AND 'FAMILY BROYGUS'

This year's Purim celebrations will be taking place on Saturday evening, 11 March 2017, starting at 7.00pm. As usual, the Purim Service and reading of the Megillah Esther will be conducted by members of the congregation following which we are planning to hold a Purim Kiddush and social evening to which everyone is invited.

Fancy dress is optional, but it is Purim. There will be the opportunity to enjoy a Jewish-style quiz based around the popular TV show "Family Fortunes".

Although the Purim tradition is that you must be so intoxicated that you are unable to tell Haman from Mordechai, no alcohol will be provided, except for Kiddush wine (?). Refreshments (nibbles) will be provided, but please bring a bottle (or two) if you want something more alcoholic.

Please make every effort to attend what should be a fun evening.

OPEN FRIDAY NIGHT SERVICE

Following the huge success of the previous Open Friday Night Service, the next one will take place on Friday 28 April 2017 starting at 7.00pm. What makes this Service different from the normal Friday Night service is the running commentary from those leading the Service explaining the nature of the prayers being recited, their background, origin and the traditional rituals being observed.

After the Service, and following the Brachot over the wine and bread, there will be the Kiddush with a wide range of "Jewish-style" foods. There also will be opportunity to look around the Synagogue, talk to those members present and examine the Ark, Scrolls and other artefacts. Please feel free to invite guests, both Jewish and non-Jewish to this interesting event, but please contact Audrey on (01482) 563835 with numbers to enable sufficient catering.

SYNAGOGUE COUNCIL MEETING

3 February 2017

Present: Ian Sugarman (Chair), Joanne Kearsley (Secretary), Aimi Sugarman (Treasurer), Andy Harbert (Vice Chair), Audrey Sugarman, Henry Goldstone, Phil O'Driscoll, Malcolm Rosenberg.

Business

The Chair confirmed that the Annual Return for the Movement for Reform Judaism (MRJ) had been completed and sent. He explained it was statistical information about the Shul which was used by MRJ to produce a national picture of Reform Judaism. The Chair reported that Chanukah Service and Kiddush on Friday 30 December 2016 had been well attended and a good evening was enjoyed by all.

The Treasurer reported that the Shul's finances were healthy and as far as she was aware there were only two forthcoming payments, the JJBS premium and the Insurance renewal, both of which would be paid in this Financial Year. There was a small number of membership subscriptions still outstanding and Malcolm agreed to assist the Treasurer to contact those who had outstanding payments and to encourage them to pay. The Treasurer had contacted Bluefin, the Insurance Broker, who had informed her that the cost of the cover would be dramatically reduced, as they had recently re-designated the Shul as a religious building and not, as previously advised, a limited company and commercial property. The Treasurer confirmed that she would be discussing the renewal with Bluefin to ensure that the Shul was adequately covered and that all contents, including the CCTV system, were covered. The Treasurer then handed out copies of the letter received from Richard Broom, the independent financial advisor, outlining his investment suggestions following a meeting between him, the Chair, the Treasurer and Henry, as one of the Trustees. Having read Richard's advice and following a brief discussion, the Council agreed to approach Richard for his assistance and the Treasurer agreed to draw up a letter asking for the proposed cost of Richard's financial advice and services.

The Chair confirmed that the Tu B'Shevat Seder would be taking place on Friday 10 February 2017. The Purim and Social Evening would be taking place on Saturday evening 11 March and there would be a quiz based on the format of Family Fortunes. Fancy dress was optional. Lionel Schooler's Headstone Consecration would be taking place on Sunday 2 April 2017 at 2.00pm and Warren Winetroube's would be taking place on Sunday 23 April at 12 noon. The council agreed to hold another Friday Night Open Service on 28 April 2017 at 7.00pm.

The Secretary reported that Andrew Percy's final Beit Din interview would be taking place at the Montague Centre in London on Thursday 16 March 2017. The Chair hoped to be there to provide support. The Council was informed that there would be a special Kiddush after the service on Friday 7 April 2017 to celebrate the 80th birthday of Gillian Smith to which everyone was invited. The Council agreed that the Shul will purchase six new Siddurim in memory of Geoff Annis. It was suggested by Aimi and passed by the Council that a portable speaker and microphone be purchased to enable the congregation to better hear the outdoor funeral services conducted at Tranby cemetery. Aimi also suggested that a social afternoon or evening in July 2017 be scheduled to show the newly released film 'Denial', which followed the court case surrounding the denial of the Holocaust. It was agreed that the film would be shown in the Shul hall and that attendance would be opened up to the whole Jewish community.

Date of next Council meeting - Friday 24 March 2017

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND

JNF GREEN SUNDAY 2017

Hopefully, everyone in the Community, will receive a personal letter, mailed from London or perhaps a telephone call, also from London, asking for your support again. JNF hopes that as in the past, you will respond as generously as you can. Green Sunday gives everyone across the Community, the opportunity to support the Hull Jewish Community Grove.

So, if you would like to be represented in Hull's own project, please make sure you say your donation this year, is for the Hull Jewish Community Grove. Green Sunday gives the Community the chance to complete the project, in time for the Chief Rabbi's visit in March.

The JNF should be given credit for its magnificent effort supporting many varied Projects, from planting trees to reservoirs to centres for disabled people, such as Aleh Negev, which Hull supported so splendidly, benefiting Jew and Arab alike. JNF looks forward to your generous support.

THE HULL JEWISH COMMUNITY GROVE

Many of you may have already made (or already broken), your New Year Resolutions, but here is just a suggestion. Remember, "The 250" Anniversary Celebrations", has given the Community a reason to share this memorable, once in a lifetime event, with the State of Israel. It would be wonderful if every family in the Community were represented in the Project. So, why not say to yourself, "I will plant trees in the Hull Jewish Community Grove!"

To all those members of the Community who have already supported the Project, I offer my most sincere thanks. You can plant trees celebrating a special event in your life, or as many have already done, in memory of loved ones.

What better way to remember those sadly, no longer with us? It would be wonderful if we could complete the grove in time for the Chief Rabbi's visit in March.

With your support we can!

Should you like to be associated with the Hull Jewish Community Grove, in any particular way, please ring Michael on (01482) 644987.

SARITA'S UPDATE

We have received the following article from Sarita Robinson who is the Movement for Reform Judaism's northern communities development worker.

Wow, what a busy time we have coming up! Since the launch of our 3 initiatives at Chagigah we have been making great progress with communities getting involved in different ways.

Communities that Care: Tackling isolation and loneliness, the beginning of March sees the beginning of our Pre-Pesach Telethon where we are encouraging and supporting all our communities to reach out to those of our members who we don't see often. Through conversations connections are made and we hope that no one is left feeling alone. Sinai already does twice annual telethons and we are delighted they are leading the way, well done to Val and her team.

Re-imagining Synagogue leadership: We ran a fantastic training session in Manchester in conjunction with Citizens UK which was attended by members of many of our Northern communities. If you would like to find out more about using community organising in your synagogue do get in touch.

Empowering personal spiritual practice: The aim of this initiative is to enrich people Jewishly, we regularly hear questions about what is Reform identity, what does it mean to be Reform and who are we as Reform Jews. We will begin by focussing on rituals at home, how we can empower people to be more confident in ritual and to begin developing their own.

Online Learning: joins together sessions taught online with small chevrotah (group) learning in person. The topic is Jewish Ethics and will explore these questions through examination of a range of Jewish and non-Jewish, classical and modern texts, delving into issues around responsibility and accountability, inclusivity and boundaries, managing our own needs and values with that of others, communication, crisis and crafting positive relationships. The course begins on Tuesday 9 May and bookings are open.

L'Chaim: our very latest module is ready! If you haven't been part of L'Chaim but would like to Rabbi Laura would be delighted to bring you up to speed before the launch of Social Justice at Menorah on 3 May, 7-10pm

Shirei Chagigah, our very own music conference, will be taking place on 6-9 July. It isn't only for those who love to sing it is for everyone who wants to either experience something new, different or recharge your spiritual batteries. One of the most important things about it is not only creating a fantastic Reform community for the 4 days but it is about the take home value in everything you learn with a focus on "how you can do this at home"

Northern Chagigah this year is the 3-5 November and is taking place at the HawkHills in Easingwold, only a hop skip and jump away from you so what are you waiting for? Our theme is around the changing seasons and how we mark time through our festivals. As always there will be an exciting RSY-Netzer programme for the children as well as a crèche for the under 5s.

For information on all events check out www.reformjudaism.org.uk and click on events or if there's something you would like to see or be involved in please get in touch with me on 07415 274 362 or Sarita@rjuk.org

REFORM JUDAISM IN 1000 WORDS

Reform Judaism in 1000 Words offers one short but deep article a week written by rabbis from across the country to explore and expand engagement with Reform Jewish thought and practice in the 21st century. We have reproduced the article sent out recently on the theme of "Kabbalah".

Context

In earlier generations of Reform Judaism, Talmud was rarely studied. In our time, it is regularly taught in our synagogues, and is a fundamental aspect of rabbinic training. We came to understand that all of our texts are part of our rich literary inheritance, and all can be a source of inspiration and meaning if we develop the skills to access them. The last few years have seen a similar increase in interest in Kabbalah, which now finds itself firmly within the mainstream of Jewish culture as we seek to engage with new and old routes to spirituality.

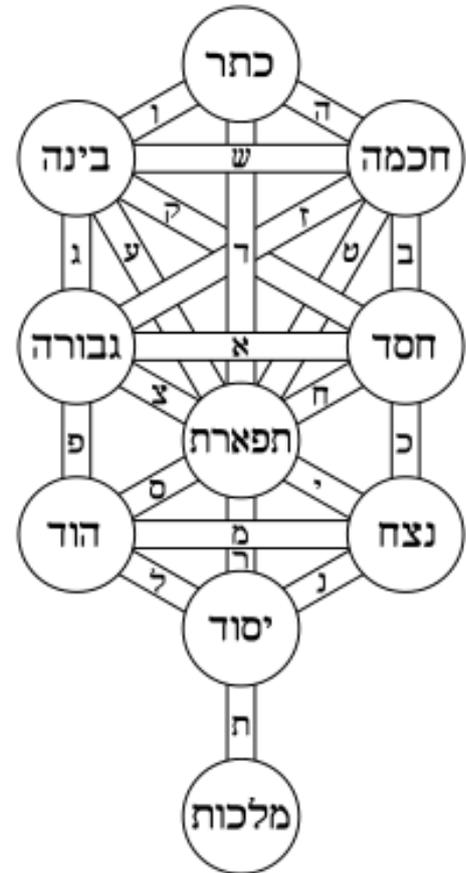

As Rabbi Larry Tabick, rabbi at Shir Hayim - Hampstead Reform, lecturer in Kabbalah and Hasidism at the Leo Baeck College, and author of The Aura of Torah (JPSA 2014) explains, this is new ground for Reform Judaism. He is leading the way in thinking about how we, as Progressive Jews, can engage with these texts and ideas.

Content

Kabbalah is like Marmite: You either love it, or you hate it. For some, it is pure superstition, not worthy of our interest. For others, it is a treif (unkosher) import into Judaism. I suspect neither group has ever studied it. Both are wrong. Kabbalah is not superstitious at its heart, though it contains much that is, and Kabbalah, while historically open to 'foreign' ideas (as Judaism generally was), is largely home-grown.

Our Reform founders would have been horrified to learn that Kabbalah is now taught openly in Reform rabbinic training colleges and in congregations. To them, it represented all the medievalism and superstition they were trying to remove from Judaism. (Previous authors on British Reform Judaism, such as Rabbis Dow Marmur and Jonathan Romain, never mention the subject.) And yet, as the academic study of Kabbalah became more acceptable, primarily through the efforts of Professor Gershom Scholem and his students, it became almost inevitable that progressive rabbinic institutions would follow suit. Rabbinic colleges were slow to do so, however, and at first, there was little suggestion that such an esoteric subject would find its way into the sermons produced by their graduates, or into adult study programmes. This situation is now changed, so that all the non-orthodox rabbinic training institutions, including our own Leo Baeck College, offer courses in Kabbalah with the pulpit and adult classroom in mind.

For the uninitiated, what is Kabbalah? Kabbalah is the Jewish esoteric and mystical tradition. Its primary expression is the Zohar, a product of the late 13th century Jewish community of Spain, but it encompasses a vast literature that precedes and follows the Zohar itself. Why should we Reform Jews study it? I suggest five reasons.

1. History. Though it arose in elitist study groups, Kabbalah was the dominant ideology of Judaism from the fifteenth to nineteenth centuries, and in some circles, still is. It has given us many elements of our liturgy, most notably the songs L'cha Dodi and Y'did Nefesh, and the Kabbalat Shabbat portion of the Friday evening service.

2. Descriptive. The great German-Jewish thinker Franz Rosenzweig taught that the aim of Jewish education was to create Jews for whom nothing Jewish was foreign. Surely, this definition means that Kabbalah has to be covered, as part of our broader Jewish learning.

3. Prescriptive. For some, Kabbalah will prove fascinating. They will wish to delve further into it, to use its insights to deepen their understanding of Judaism and its practice, to take kabbalistic meditations to heart. The vast literature of Kabbalah, and especially that of its offshoot Hasidism, is also a rich source of sermon material.

4. Ethical. Kabbalah teaches that all that is, the earth and all its inhabitants, are not only created by God, but are manifestations of God. Therefore, the environment and other human beings, no matter their background or culture, are worthy of our respect and indeed, our reverence.

5. Demography and leadership. There is a small but significant minority of young Jewish people who are hungry for spirituality. If we offered more Kabbalah, that might help to keep them with us. Otherwise, we run the risk of losing them to Chabad, Aish, the Kabbalah Center, Buddhism, whatever. If they feel that Reform Judaism meets their spiritual needs, they could be our leaders and rabbis of the future.

Reform Judaism must, as it does with all Jewish sources, bring a critical attitude to the study of Kabbalah. In particular, we need to steer a careful course between conflicting demands. We have to be aware of academic work on the subject, because Kabbalah arose and came to prominence in particular historical periods whose concerns and focus might not be the same as our own. This would help us avoid ahistorical fallacies. (For example, the Zohar is not the product of second century Palestine, but of thirteenth century Spain.) Our knowledge must be grounded in traditional texts, to preserve our Jewish authenticity and keep us far from a trendy, but shallow, spirituality.

We have to be critical of the ethics and morality taught by our mystical tradition. It may be fine to learn to give a lower priority to our material desires and a greater one to our spiritual needs, and to the needs of others, but Kabbalah also contains much that is sexist by our standards, or disparaging of other peoples and faiths. We must therefore be outward looking. Mysticism is a common feature of many human societies, each with its own approach and practices. Kabbalah is a uniquely Jewish path, but respect must be accorded paths because they too are deeply human, and may contain lessons for us.

Kabbalah presents serious challenges to Reform Jews. It challenges us to be more ritually observant, to help us keep our high ethical principles in mind at all times. It urges us to be mindful of God in all that we do. It stimulates us to think beyond the emotional and rational categories that normally govern our lives, and to go beyond literalism in our understanding of our prayers and our Scriptures. Here is one tiny example of how the insights of Kabbalah might deepen our spiritual understanding and ethical practice, from a work attributed to Hayyim Vital (1542-1620): "The Infinite is internal to all the worlds and external to all the worlds." All things that exist, you, me, the numberless things that fill the universe, all contain something of the Infinite, of God. In modern terms, the universe is a fractal in which every part, as it were, contains the whole. This implies that every moment presents us with a revelation, that every creature and every person is worthy of our respect. All we need to do is: pay attention. What could be more profound, more Jewish, more spiritual and more progressive than that?

Traditionally, Jewish Yahrzeits are remembered on the Hebrew date, which means that there might be some variation in the English date each year.

If the Hebrew date is observed, it must be remembered that the Yahrzeit starts the evening before.

Memorial prayers for the deceased will be recited during the Friday Night Service for those Yahrzeits which fall during the coming week. If a Yahrzeit falls on a Friday Night, please remember that the prayers will usually be recited during the Friday Night Service the week before.
